BUTLER'S RESPONSE TO MOTION TO MODIFY
ORAL ARGUMENT TIME APPORTIONMENT

Respondent/Appellant Matt Butler, files this response to the Motion to Modify Oral Argument Time Apportionment, filed on Nov. 19, 2000, and states:

1. This Court's briefing order was issued on Nov. 17, 2000. It provided for "a maximum of one hour to the side" being made available for oral argument.
2. Several parties have expressed concern over their affiliation with other parties in this case. For example, the attorney general moved to be realigned with the Petitioners/Appellants, and Respondent/Appellee Harris has asked to be treated separately from any party.

3. It has been proposed by Respondent/ Appellee¹ that the time be split so she is aligned with nobody, that Vice President Gore and those affiliated with his efforts be aligned together, and that Gov. Bush and those affiliated with his efforts be aligned² together. She proposes that after this realignment, each group would be provided 40 minutes of the two hours this Court has set aside.
4. Respondent/Appellee Butler takes no position on the proper alignment of the parties in this case. However, he has already agreed to limit his argument time³ to 10 minutes to provide the maximum argument time for the other parties, without regard to how they are aligned. He objects to any proposal or order that would restrict his already short time for presenting the side of the Florida voter under the facts of this extremely important case.

³ Butler has timely filed his Answer Brief pursuant to this Court’s order to preserve his right to participate in oral argument.

Wherefore, Respondent/Appellee, respectfully requests that however this Court decides to respond to Secretary Harris' Motion, such ruling should not affect Butler's right and ability to participate in oral argument.
